Australian Pines Hazardous On Glades' Roadsides

Australian pines lining the Glades roadsides are creating even greater problems than before. The almost daily wind and electrical storms have been causing these well aged trees to fall in the road and making them hazardous, said Cpl. Bertrand of the Florida Highway Patrol.

R. A. Johnson, of the State Road Department, Fort Lauderdale, said "quite a few years ago the State Road Department was to remove some of the trees, but was stopped by an injunction. Now it might be even harder because the trees have become more important in the public image."

At this time, the State Road Department has no plans to remove the trees. In the case of isolated trees, regular maintenance can take care of them, but a whole stretch of road would probably call for a contract and a special appreciation, stated Johnson.

County Commissioner E. W. "Bud" Weaver said, last year, out of necessity, 16 of these trees were removed from the Highway 80 roadside near Glades General Hospital, during a hurricane threat. Weaver said the trees serve no purpose, and were dangerous. He said "I'd rather take a chance with the canal than crash into one of those trees."

Yesterday, when Weaver went to West Palm Beach, he spoke to the County Engineer, who will contact the State Road Department and find out what can be done.

On two recent occasions, trees have blown down along the roadside. On Highway 98 and 441, Sunday, several trees blocked the road, but, with the aid of the City of Pahokee and Belle Glade, and equipment from the State Road Dept., the road was cleared. Tuesday during the storm, on Highway 80 near the Experiment Station, another tree blocked the road.

Weaver said that construction of a guard rail along Highway 98 has been included in this year program, and there no longer need be the trees. He said even if the partially rotted trees were taken out the problem could be partially alleviated.

The problem has once again been brought to mind, Weaver stated, because of the trees being removed from the Highway 80 roadside near Glades General Hospital, during a hurricane threat. Weaver said the trees serve no purpose, and were dangerous.

PBJC Entrance Application Deadline Monday, July 24

Only a few days remain for students who plan to enter Palm Beach Junior College as day students, this fall. To file applications, write Dr. Harold C. Manor, president.

Monday, July 24, at 3 p.m., is the final hour for applications to be received in the office of the Registrar, Dr. Manor said. "After that, a first-time student may apply for evening classes, but not as a day student."

New day students are given another week in which to gather all supplementary information for the application, and final testing day has been set for August 1.

Orientation and counseling are August 10 and 11, and Registration on August 14. Classes begin August 18.

For the first time, this fall, students who are planning to return to classes at the college after having been away for longer than the Winter Term, 1966, are asked to apply early for counseling. Dr. Manor said.

"We are making a major change to machine-assisted registration procedures this fall" by applying to the Registrar for counseling before having classes assigned through the machine-assisted process will have a definite advantage, as far as class selection is concerned.

All our students who were in school during the Winter Term, or are in school now, have already been counseled, and have completed forms for use in the computer.

Students who have not been in school in the last two terms may have the advantages of the machine-assisted registration by applying to the Registrar for counseling before August 7, Dr. Manor said. "They may still register at a later date," Dr. Manor said, "but a full selection of courses may not be available."

In the only contested race to date, incumbent Mayor, Commissioner Bill J. Bailey will be opposed by Richard H. Burns. Bailey qualified on the first day. Friday and Burns announced his candidacy Tuesday.

Incumbent Aubrey Farmer, north borough, also filed on Friday.

Weathers announced his intention to run for re-election Tuesday. Weathers is presently operating a jewelry store in Clewiston and plans to reopen a Belle Glade Jewelry store in September of October. "I feel that my time will be limited, running two businesses and have decided not to run for reelection," Weathers said.

Friends in the Belle Glade area were shocked and grieved by the sudden death of Leon Lee Boykin, 45, at 2 a.m. Tuesday at 1624 N. E. Ave. Belle Glade. He apparently died of a heart attack.

A native of Oliver, Georgia, he had made his home at 429 54th St., West Palm Beach, since 1947. He had been employed by the Belle Glade Herald for several years and about 18 months ago had went into his own business, operating the Boykin Printing Company at 1624 N. E. Ave. L. Belle Glade.

Teacher Shortage Is Critical

TALLAHASSEE (Special) — Florida's public schools will face the most critical teacher shortage in the state's history in the fall, a survey of key counties by the Florida Education Association (FEA) indicates.

A check of 20 counties in all parts of the state discloses a shortage of more than 1,700 teachers at this time. FEA officials in early May predicted Florida would face a 4,000 teacher shortage this September.

"If present percentage figures continue in the state's 67 counties, the shortage will be much greater than we assumed earlier," said Phil Constans, Jr., Associate Executive Secretary for FEA.

"Many of the vacancies," said Constans, "will be caused by annual contract teachers who signed non-binding intent to return forms in the spring, but have since sought employment elsewhere."

Most critically hit are the second and third largest counties in the state — Duval and Hillsborough — with each reporting at least 400 teacher vacancies. In addition to state and national sanctions, which have been invoked against the whole state, Duval and Hillsborough counties are also under local sanctions.

The situation is so desperate in Hillsborough County that Rodney Cullison, personnel director, said "The Administration is just trying to figure out how to open the schools in the fall because there are more vacancies than they can possibly hope to fill."

In Duval County, Ted Starns, director of staffing, said the problem is due to the "three S's" — salaries, sanctions and shortages. He added, "Many teachers have withdrawn their applications from consideration because of the national, state and local sanctions."

(Two years ago all Duval County high schools were accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities because of inadequate funds, facilities and equipment.)

Palm Beach County school officials reported 120 vacancies. Charles Wilson, personnel director, said sanctions are having a "most definite" effect on hiring as vacancies are running much higher than previous years.

"If losing teachers is good, we're making time fast," declared Ray L. Williams, director of staffing.

GPMA Elects Collins President

H. C. Collins of Belle Glade was named President of the Glades Property Management Association in a regular directors meeting held last week to fill the vacancy created several months ago by the resignation of Stanley Hooks.

W. A. Keen was elected Vice-President to fill the vacancy created by Mr. Collins' promotion. George Young was given the title of Executive Secretary.

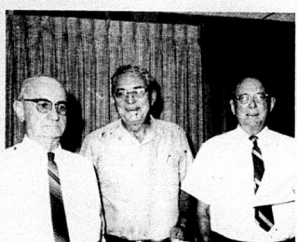

The association was incorporated in April, 1966 by a group of business men who had been associated in various undertakings to promote good government and prevent the waste of tax monies.

The purposes stated in the Charter are to preserve the economic and legal rights of its members in properties owned or managed by them, and to upgrade the physical and aesthetic characteristics of the Glades area. In order to meet the demands of the membership Mr. Young has been given the title of Executive Director and his office at 427 S. Main has been made headquarters of the organization.

The public is invited to visit Mr. Young at his office for discussing the work of the association. All matters of interest to tax payers which are presented to him will receive the attention of the Board of Directors.

Several membership meetings are planned for the year at which government officials will be asked to discuss their duties, responsibilities and business practices used in the carrying out of these responsibilities.

The association solicits the cooperation of other area organizations in other community projects.

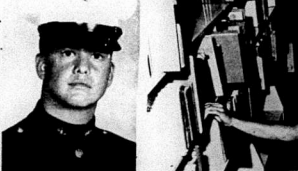

New appointments of the Glades Property Management are, from L. to R. W. A. Keen, George C. Young and H. C. Collins.

ties which are interested in good and efficient government. Edgar Maxwell, County Tax Assessor, was the first government official to speak to the Association.

Maxwell told members that his office could only comply with the law in making assessments and that taxes that seemed to be unfair could only be equalized by new legislation.

Maxwell asked for public support in making property evaluations under the law and told the group that for a tax assessor to act differently would lead to corruption in the office.

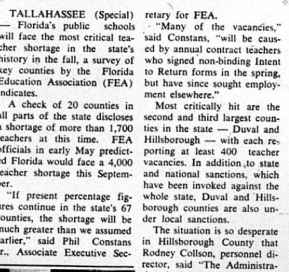

Inequities in the evaluation plan upon property, Maxwell said, could be rectified through a regular procedure set up by law. If an individual piece of property is wrongly evaluated, Maxwell said, his office would make adjustments if information was furnished in writing and in compliance to deadlines for tax rolls. The deadlines and more information about the procedural steps to take may be obtained from the Tax Assessor's office, Maxwell said.

A complaint does not mean that the evaluation will be changed to meet an owner's personal evaluation, Maxwell pointed out. In fact, he said, there was a court case pending now in which Maxwell had refused to change an evaluation and property owners were contesting the matter. "If I feel I'm right, I'll fight," Maxwell told the group.

His fighting attitude, he said, would make the tax burden more equitable to all instead of reducing evaluation under pressure and then redistributing the tax burden.

Tommy Folden graduated from the United States Marine Boot Camp at Paris Island Friday.

Folden has now been assigned to Camp Lejeune in North Carolina for advanced infantry training after which he will receive 20 days home leave.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT
Southern States Industrial Council

A Target For Youth

As respectable citizens concern themselves with the problem of the "beatnik" and "hippie" element in the nation — young people who divorce themselves from community and national responsibility, it is words to be heard in mind the words of a distinguished leader who has had wide experience in molding youngsters for service to country.

The leader referred to is Lt. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, USMC, commanding general of the Fleet Marine Force Pacific. Gen. Krulak recently said of the former "beatniks" who have come under his command:

"As to their beards and long hair and sweatshirts, I have no concern about that because that's very superficial.

Many of the same boys who are distinguishing themselves in the highest order of heroism in Vietnam today once had long hair, dirty sweat shirts and sandals. It doesn't take very long to give them a haircut and a bath.

"The important thing, though, is to give them something to aim for — a target, an objective. Once you do that you will have no more trouble with them. I have no concern whatever about their ugly appearance, repulsive though it is to me, because I know it is superficial.

The counsel given by Gen. Krulak makes a great deal of sense — youth must have a goal. The Marine Corps, like the other armed services, gives youngsters a goal — something to aim for when they are in uniform. But it also is important that everything in a youngster's bringing up contribute to a vision of a full, rich, responsible life as a citizen.

Unfortunately, young people are not always provided with a worthy goal or with the right examples. The three branches of the U. S. government should play a prominent part in furnishing young Americans with examples of what is good, but these branches in recent years often have provided disastrous illustrations for action.

President Cleveland once said that the people should support the government, and that government should not support the people. But recent administrations, under the influence of "liberal" ideas, have taken a contrary position. They have played down the concept of self-reliance and personal independence. It is no wonder, therefore, that the "beatniks" and "hippies" have flourished of late.

The Great Society of the Johnson administration, for instance, utterly fails to give youth a proper goal toward which they can strive. Indeed so, the employers are subject to fines or imprisonment. The fantastic truth is that the "liberal" administrations have been anti-work. They have promoted welfare programs at enormous expense, of ten without requiring that the recipients engage in any work for the community. Indeed the federal aid-to-dependent children program has caused many unwed mothers to make a career of illegitimacy. The War on Poverty has offered comfortable nests to people who otherwise would have to go to work for private employers.

Is it any wonder, therefore, that the nation has a "beatnik" problem? Of course it isn't. The "liberal" leaders of our country have failed to young people of America. Instead of giving them the goal of independence through hard work, they are providing them with the goal of becoming a drone at public expense. Clearly, it is time for a change.

Visiting the East

By Doyle Conner
I am looking forward to making new business friends for Florida, when I will have the privilege of hosting a 24-day agricultural goodwill tour to Hawaii, New Zealand and Australia beginning next Sunday.

Accompanying me will be representatives of almost every phase of Florida agriculture. It is my sincere belief that Florida agriculture has benefited tremendously through the exchange of technical information between our country and the various countries we have visited in past years.

This year, we chose to visit Australia and New Zealand because of the similarity in the climates of those countries and the state of Florida.

Of great benefit to Florida livestock producers, I believe, will be a tour of the North Island of New Zealand, which has very productive sheep and dairy enterprises.

Our midway point and first port of call will be Hawaii. Although noted the world over for tourism, Hawaii is a strong agricultural state, being our largest pineapple producer. The island of Hawaii boasts one of the largest cattle ranches in the world, in the Parker Ranch, and is a leading producer of sugarcane.

We will visit farms, ranches, thoroughbred stud farms, citrus groves, marketing areas, and in Australia, we will have the opportunity to attend the Brisbane Royal Exhibition, one of the outstanding cattle shows in Australia.

One of the highlights of our tour of Australia's agricultural complex will be a visit to the Murrumbidgee irrigation area. This is an area which was plagued by drought and was considered virtually useless for agricultural purposes. Today, through modern irrigation methods, this area is one of the most productive agricultural areas in Australia.

Since much of the beef imported by the U. S. comes from Australia, we will tour processing plants, to see if their methods meet the high standards of American producers.

Many of us have Florida friends who have pioneered cattle raising around the Darwin area in northeastern Australia.

Uncle Dan from Doolie Says:

Welfare Creates Crime

Dear Mister Editor:

I got some fingers here on my table that has got me about as comfortable. As a general rule, I don't want to read what Dizzy Dean used to call "wails" when he was talking about baseball on television. But these statistics here was mighty disturbing.

A fellow named Stanton Evans, that was editor of the Indianapolis Star, has written a book about what causes crime in this country. I always figured newspaper editors was pretty smart folks, and I ain't got no reason to think this fellow Evans ain't got his fingers official.

The gist of this piece I clipped from the papers is that poverty ain't the cause of crime and that welfare creates more crime than it cures.

He says crime in the United States between the Depression and now has increased 80 per cent while the population was increasing 47 per cent. He reports we got less pore people today than any time in our history. But we got the highest crime rate we ever had. He says the town of Johnstown, Pa., had the highest unemployment rate in the nation in 1962 and had the lowest crime rate in America.

He reported the Government was spending $9.58 billion on welfare in 1959, $35 billion in 1958, and $71 billion in 1964. And the crime figures, he said, showed crime kept climbing right along with ever increase in welfare. For instance, he reported, when they had that riot in Los Angeles in 1965, they checked and found 37 per cent of the inmates arrested had been on welfare all their lives.

Furthermore, said this editor fellow, based on population, these fancy Federal housing developments had the highest crime rate of any type of community in the world. These was the areas where the Government was charging low rents and most of the folks was on some sort of welfare or Government handout program.

He put the stopper in the jug by giving figures that showed crime in this country never got in high gear from poverty but started going sky high when we went on this all-out welfare and hand-out binge that covered thousands of folks engaged in crime.

I was planning on pasting these fingers up behind the cheese box at the country store but I've changed my mind. Then fellowers at the store, Mister Editor, was miserable enough over time they took a look at the goings on in Washington. I think it would be best if you let me add to their misery with these statistics supplied by that newspaper fellow in Indianapolis.

Incidental, Mister Editor, I know you got a lot of miseries yourself about these matters in general and I apologize for this little piece this week.
Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

Meditation

Ye are . . . of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone.

—Ephesians 2:19-20

An elderly Korean pastor continues to work today, building for eternity. Wherever he goes, he sees the need for church buildings.

Some years ago, in poor health, he was sent to a mountain village to rest and regain his strength. In a year a church was built there.

He was forced by war to evacuate his home and move to a village in the south. He started carrying rocks to the top of a hill to build a church. Others joined in his enthusiasm, and today a church stands like a beacon light for all the village.

In the city of Seoul, he found a sanatorium with no place for his sick people to worship. Now on the sunny side of a hill stands a little church.

Faith and action have been his tools, plus a burning desire to tell others of his Christ. This aged pastor is, indeed, of the household of God. The foundation of his life is Jesus Christ, in whose strength he labors, building for eternity.

PRAYER: We thank Thee, O Lord, for the lives of those who through the years have built for eternity. May the building blocks we put in our own lives today be everlasting, and may we build in accordance with Thy will. In the name of Christ, Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
What are we building today that will endure for eternity?

Church Of God Will Sponsor Old Fashion Sing

The Belle Glade Church of God will sponsor an Old Fashion Hymn sing for the Okeechobee District of the Church of God on Saturday night at 7 P. M.

The churches will bring the needed ingredients to make their own ice cream and following the singing will gather on the church lawn for an ice cream social.

An invitation is extended to all singers of all denominations to be with us and participate in the service. Any solos, duets, trios and quartets are welcome.

Members voted, as a continuing project, to sponsor and work with the children's choir recently organized at the church.

Attending the study and social hour which followed, were Mrs. Brough, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Paul Vondracek, Mrs. Theron W. Caselman, Mrs. Robert L. Cornell, Jr., Mrs. Dean Q. Wilson, Mrs. James E. Fraser, Sr., and the hostess Mrs. Fraser.

Is This A Safe Foundation? The Power Of Prayer

By Lewis Lewellyn
Recently I heard on the radio a blasphemous song in which the singer proclaimed that he had "got religion."

"I believe in me," he exclaimed, "I believe in me."

Now, self-confidence is a great thing and all of us should believe in ourselves.

But when a man declares that his religion is based on the statement, "I believe in me," he is putting himself into the place of God.

WIFE:
The Bible says, "The mouth of fools poureth out foolishness," so we can expect more of this sort of thing. But why does an intelligent radio announcer put such a record on his turntable to foul the airwaves?

It is good to have self-confidence, but shouldn't it be based on something more substantial than an affirmation such as, "I believe in me?"

BETTER and BETTER?
There was a famous Frenchman, some years ago, who taught his disciples to say, several times each day, "Every day, in every way, I'm getting better and better." This suggestion was supposed to produce in the person the daily improvement which he claimed. The Frenchman's name was Emile Coue.

Coue's friends and followers were saddened when he committed suicide.

The repetition of a sentence, whether true or not in fact, may give one a feeling of self-confidence, at least temporarily, but is it dependable as the foundation on which to build a life?

Is This A Safe Foundation? The Power Of Prayer

By Lewis Lewellyn
Recently I heard on the radio a blasphemous song in which the singer proclaimed that he had "got religion."

"I believe in me," he exclaimed, "I believe in me."

Now, self-confidence is a great thing and all of us should believe in ourselves.

But when a man declares that his religion is based on the statement, "I believe in me," he is putting himself into the place of God.

WIFE:
The Bible says, "The mouth of fools poureth out foolishness," so we can expect more of this sort of thing. But why does an intelligent radio announcer put such a record on his turntable to foul the airwaves?

It is good to have self-confidence, but shouldn't it be based on something more substantial than an affirmation such as, "I believe in me?"

BETTER and BETTER?
There was a famous Frenchman, some years ago, who taught his disciples to say, several times each day, "Every day, in every way, I'm getting better and better." This suggestion was supposed to produce in the person the daily improvement which he claimed. The Frenchman's name was Emile Coue.

Coue's friends and followers were saddened when he committed suicide.

The repetition of a sentence, whether true or not in fact, may give one a feeling of self-confidence, at least temporarily, but is it dependable as the foundation on which to build a life?

Ron Halbrook With First Americans In Old Jerusalem

Ron Halbrook was with the first group of American tourists to be allowed to live in the old city of Jerusalem following the recent Middle East War.

Ron is traveling as a student with the Foreign Language League Schools of Salt Lake City, Utah, in the Bible Lands Study Program.

The group of 32 students entered old Jerusalem, Jordan, now called East Jerusalem, Israel, after the 9 p. m. curfew by special permission from the Israeli Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

A military police escort guided their bus to the hotel, which until the previous day had been occupied by Israeli soldiers.

Ron reports that their hotel is the only one now operating in the old city, others remain occupied or were too badly damaged to reopen. Water and electrical connections with the West side of Jerusalem had been completed four days before the group arrived. Telephones, however, are still inoperable.

Ron, a student at Florida College, will undertake credit studies in Biblical history and in archeology during the six week program. The group will spend four weeks in the old city of Jerusalem, with additional trips to the country, side, and to Tel Aviv, Haifa, and Rome, Italy.

Biblical authorities have been scheduled to lecture to the group which will return from Rome to the United States on August 14.

Teacher Shortage

rector of personnel for Lee County (Fr. Myers). Two weeks ago there were 50 vacancies in that county, and last week the total jumped to 83.

"What bothers me," said Williams, "is that I get calls every day from teachers who agreed to come but have now changed their minds."

Reasons listed for this were not only salaries, but the low pay scale. "Georgia and Alabama just laughed at me when I told them what the salaries were," said another Lee County official. He added that the system is also losing many administrators, citing seven in recent weeks.

In Dade County, the state's largest school system, filling teacher vacancies does not seem as great a problem as in Hillsborough and Duval. This holds true for Pinellas, Broward and Brevard Counties which can boast, along with Dade, the highest teacher salary schedules in the state. Each of these counties has extensive early recruitment programs. It was pointed out that although his county has teachers to fill the vacancies, he is somewhat distressed about the quality of the teachers. Other officials in large counties expressed a similar feeling.

One Dade County school official expressed fear that many teachers from outside the state who accepted jobs before national sanctions were imposed will refuse to sign contracts. The NEA has urged out-of-state teachers who have accepted positions in Florida to reconsider and withdraw their contracts.

"The real hurt," said Dade's personnel chief, "is not going to be in the big counties where salaries are competitive, but in the smaller counties that have trouble recruiting teachers even under normal conditions."

For example, Madison and Brevard counties, both in North Florida, say they are feeling the effect of sanctions. Madison County hasn't hired a teacher since sanctions were imposed and they still have 12 vacancies (nearly one-half of their need) left to fill, according to the county superintendent.

Bay County (Panama City) has 50 vacancies in field before school starts. "In the past two weeks I've had only five letters of application, and in the past two months only 10 good applicants. Before sanctions I used to get 10 applications per day," said Bay County's director of personnel.

Putnam County (Palatka) needs 20 teachers and Seminole County has 55 vacancies left to fill. Both say sanctions have had a very definite effect on their hiring. Another problem listed with the smaller counties was the lack of certified teachers even when they had applicants. Said one official, "They're all going to places like Dade, Broward and Broward where the pay is good and the county has other attractions such as large cities, beaches and better facilities."

In the past, Florida has recruited many of its teachers from the surrounding South-eastern states — especially Georgia. The grass no longer seems greener in Florida, and Georgia and Alabama teachers are now going home to better salaries and improved conditions.

Georgia now pays its teachers a base rate of $5,000 plus whatever the individual counties add. School systems contacted in southern Georgia indicate a greater influx of teachers than usual from Florida and a greater number of applications from all areas in Florida — especially the southern north Florida counties.

Ben H. Hutchinson, director of secondary personnel for Fultons County (Atlanta), said "Florida teachers have been descending upon us since the sanctions were invoked, and there doesn't seem to be any let-up as the summer progresses."

Sanctions, even though they were imposed near the end of the school year, have already caused a marked decline in the hiring of teachers in Florida. The survey concluded that the full impact of sanctions will be felt, not in the big counties with better facilities, salaries, and extensive recruitment programs, but in the small counties where conditions have never been good and hiring teachers a perpetual problem.
